Pulsus has taken the privilege of felicitating Traditional medicine 2020 Organizing Committee and Keynote Speakers who supported the event.

The esteemed guests, Keynote speakers, well-known researchers, and delegates shared their innovative research and vast experience through their fabulous presentations at the podium of the grand Traditional medicine 2020 Conference. We are glad to inform that all accepted abstracts for the conference have been published in Pulsus Journals

We are also obliged to various delegate experts, company representatives and other eminent personalities who supported the conference. We sincerely thank the Organizing Committee Members for their gracious presence, support and assistance. With the unique feedback from the conference, Pulsus would like to announce the commencement of the “Annual Congress on Traditional Medicine” to be held during November 5-6, 2020 at Webinar. We look forward to seeing your benign presence with active contribution and support to make this event successful once more.

Biography

Timothy Winey was born in Omaha Nebraska in 1966. He went on to study music (violin) and educational studies at both California State University Fresno and California State University Sacramento where he ultimately graduated. Timothy's interest in vibration led him down the proverbial “rabbit hole” of energy medicine where he began experimenting with Torsion Fields. His discovery has led to a number of findings showing anomalous Torsion effects on liquids. University and industry testing have confirmed a puzzling array of non-classical yet robust effects including:

In 2015 Timothy was invited by famed University of Washington water researcher Dr. Gerald Pollack (author of the ground breaking book “Cells, Gels and the Engines of Life”) to present his research to a gathering of top scientists at the 10th annual conference on the Physics, Chemistry and Biology of Water held in Varna Bulgaria.
